WELCOME TO THE GIN FESTIVAL

Wetherspoon is celebrating all things gin in our summer 2019 gin festival.

The 17-day event showcases up to 13 gins made in the UK and overseas. In addition to the many gins listed on the menu, this festival will feature several not previously served in Wetherspoon pubs.

The line-up includes flavoured gins, among them the brand-new Edinburgh Gin Lemon & Jasmine Gin, Kopparberg Premium Gin Strawberry & Lime, gin-based liqueurs, limited editions and, for the first time, a distilled non-alcoholic, Ceder's Crisp.

There is even a gin owned by movie star Ryan Reynolds.

To celebrate the great British summer heatwave (fingers crossed), we have sourced some tropical flavours, such as Eden Mill Love Gin Liqueur Mango & Pineapple, Boë Peach & Hibiscus Gin Liqueur, Jawbox Pineapple & Ginger Gin Liqueur and the flamingo-inspired Zymurgorium FlaGingo Pink Gin.

You could also try the ultimate British summer flavour: Sipsmith Gin Strawberries & Cream.

For those who like their gin a little more on the classic side, we have two limited-edition British gins to enjoy – Hendrick's Midsummer Solstice and Bombay Sapphire English Estate.

Our international distillers include Aviation American Gin from the USA, Tower Bridge Gin from Moldova and, for those who would like to try something completely different, how about Ceder's Crisp distilled non-alcoholic from Sweden.

The gin boom over the past few years has shown us that gin doesn't always have to be paired with tonic (although you can't beat a classic G&T sometimes).

We offer a range of tonics and mixers to accompany your gin choice. If you want to try something different, ginger ale and lemonade are options, along with our three flavoured tonics from Fentimans: elderflower, Valencian orange and pink grapefruit – look for the serving suggestions in the tasting notes section.

We hope you enjoy this festival as much as we have enjoyed putting it all together.

All of this festival's gins will also be available to order via the Wetherspoon app, so you won't have to lose your table in the beer garden or go to the bar.

THE HISTORY OF GIN

10 FACTS ABOUT GIN

- 1 Legally, gin must have a predominant juniper flavour. Other than that, there are no restrictions as to what other botanicals may be used during distillation.
- 2 In the early 1920s, Ted Geisel was caught serving bootleg gin at a party in his college dorm room. He was removed as editor-in-chief of the college magazine. He began submitting his cartoons under the name Seuss, which, a few years later, became Dr Seuss.
- 3 In New York of 1928, a few years before the Bloody Mary was created, gin with tomato juice was a popular hangover cure.
- 4 Nearly all of the juniper used in the gin-making process is picked wild.
- 5 In 2017 (after a 13-year absence), owing to its increase in popularity, gin was added back into the 'basket' of the Office for National Statistics. The basket is used to track the rate of inflation on everyday goods and services.
- 6 In the navy, sailors were given rum as a part of their daily rations; officers, on the other hand, were given gin.
- 7 There has been a World Gin Day since 2009 – on the second Saturday in June.
- 8 The number of distilleries in the UK has increased in the past five years by over 127%. There are now 361, with England (for the first time in history) having more distilleries than Scotland.
- 9 James Bond may love his martinis 'shaken, not stirred', yet most bartenders would say that it overdilutes the drink. They would suggest 'stirred, not shaken'.
- 10 We may love a gin, but the place with the highest per-capita consumption of gin in the world is the Republic of the Philippines. They even have a word for a gin session – 'ginuman'.

FLAVOUR GUIDE

We have added these symbols next to each of the gins on pages 8–23. Below is a brief description which below will give you an idea of the flavours to expect from the gin.

Laverstoke Mill Distillery

Bombay Sapphire English Estate is a unique London dry gin which draws inspiration from the landscape surrounding the Bombay Sapphire Laverstoke Mill Distillery in Hampshire. This limited-edition gin was launched in April 2019 and balances the familiar citrus notes of its renowned London dry gin with two new botanicals: pennyroyal mint and rosehip. These new additions are perfectly blended to produce bright citrus notes invigorated with mint, which create a vibrant gin for the ultimate summer refreshment.

The distillery

Bombay Sapphire English Estate has been created by master distiller Dr Anne Brock at the Laverstoke Mill Distillery. The distillery opened in 2014 and was set up to be a sustainable distillery which guests could visit to learn about the process of creating gin. At the distillery, they are working hard to have all of their botanicals stamped sustainable, and they are almost there. In keeping with the distillery's aims, Laverstoke Mill has a BREEAM award for sustainability.

Cederberg Mountains, South Africa

The distillery

Early in 2017, husband and wife team Craig from South Africa and Maria from Sweden discovered a magical valley nestled in the Cederberg Mountains of the Western Cape, South Africa.

The valley, which they now co-own, is home to many intriguing botanicals, including rooibos and buchu, used for thousands of years by the indigenous peoples of South Africa.

It was these botanicals which gave Craig and Maria the idea to create a distilled non-alcoholic.

Did you know that, in many aspects, making a distilled non-alcoholic is more complex than making an alcoholic gin? Each botanical for Ceder's is produced independently and has its own ABV. Once produced, all 18 botanicals are sent to the distillery in Sweden, where they are blended with Swedish water and allowed to marry with each other for a short period of time.

Craig and Maria

The combined ingredients, when blended, never go above 0.5% ABV, which is comparable to ginger beer or vanilla essence. The finished liquid is bottled with care at source, in Sweden, to produce Ceder's.

Edinburgh Gin Distillery

The distillery

Edinburgh Gin was launched in 2010 by Jane and Alex Nicol, under their company Spencerfield Spirit Company. Today, it is owned by Ian Macleod Distillers, a third-generation independently owned Scottish company.

Since 2010, Edinburgh Gin has been committed to the art and science of distilling and creating innovative, dynamic, award-winning gins. Edinburgh Gin is dedicated to guiding people's discovery of the modern-day gin experience. Currently, it produces six gins, six gin liqueurs, three limited-edition gins and two ready-to-drink G&T cans.

This handcrafted gin is created at two unique distilleries in Scotland's capital city. One is situated in the heart of the West End, which you can visit – it also turns into a speakeasy at night... shh.

The other is located at The Biscuit Factory, in the historic gin port of Leith, allowing Edinburgh Gin to increase its production capacity and distil more.

David Wilkinson – head distiller

All of the distilling is carried out under the watchful eye of head distiller David Wilkinson and distillery manager Finlay Nicol. David was awarded Distiller of the Year 2019 at the Gin Magazine awards held in London earlier this year. It was here that Edinburgh Gin was also awarded Distillery of the Year 2019.

Echlinville Distillery

The distillery

In County Down, just outside Belfast, is a vast 300-acre country estate which dates from the 16th century. This is home to both the Jawbox distillery and the fields where grain for the spirit is grown and harvested. Opened in 2013, it was Northern Ireland's first licensed distillery in over 125 years.

Jawbox gin is triple-distilled very slowly in traditional copper-pot stills, as the company believes it takes time to let the botanicals infuse to produce the best-quality gin. Jawbox distils in small batches, using time-honoured methods, plus a unique combination of botanicals, including local Belfast Black Mountain heather.

Why Jawbox?

In homes of rich and poor alike, the deep, boxy Belfast sink began to appear. It became a focal point in many a kitchen – where most conversations took place – and so it got its own nickname: the jawbox.

Jared, Sam and Fairfax

The distillery

The Sipsmith distillery is based in London, situated just off the Hogarth Roundabout, in an area where gin made its name in the 18th century.

It all began in 2009, in a tiny workshop in Hammersmith, London. Two childhood friends, Fairfax and Sam, had an unwavering belief in things well made – the way they used to be, the way they should be – so they set up London's first traditional copper distillery since 1820. Their mission was simple: to bring London dry gin, of truly uncompromising quality and character, back to the city where it first earned its name. Every bottle of Sipsmith is handcrafted in genuinely small batches. Every drop of every batch is lovingly laboured over, by hand, by their dedicated distillers.

Master distiller Jared Brown is a multiaward-winning drinks historian, writer, educator and publisher who has been distilling for over 40 years.

Jared grew up in upstate New York before relocating to the Cotswolds, where some of Sipsmith's botanical ingredients are sourced from his garden. He is also a rectifier of The Gin Guild.

There wouldn't be a gin boom today had it not been for Sipsmith. In 2008, the Sipsmith founders lobbied the government to overturn the Gin Act 1751, which made it impossible to set up a craft distillery. They were granted the first distilling licence in London for almost 200 years, and since then over 500 licences have been awarded to new distilleries up and down the country.

What's behind the name?

Founder Fairfax's dad is a well-known West Country silversmith. Taking a raw material and imparting craftsmanship, care and attention makes you a smith, and doing it with a liquid designed to be sippable, such as a G&T, makes you a Sipsmith.

The Lakes Distillery

The distillery

Established in 2011, The Lakes Distillery nestles on the north shore of Bassenthwaite Lake. The majestic surroundings near Keswick inspire the artistic ethos and the range of fine whiskies, gins and vodka produced there.

The Lake District has long been a crucible for creativity, a place in which the imagination can flourish, and it's no different for Dhavall Gandhi. He takes his inspiration from the UNESCO World Heritage Site where a state-of-the-art distillery has been built meticulously within a 160-year-old farmstead on the banks of the River Derwent.

Sculpted into the very bedrock of the distillery, The Lakes' quatrefoil represents the core beliefs of faith, hope, luck and love. These are the compass points of the distillery's journey, shaped by like-minded adventurers who appreciate a creative approach to gin-making and the rewards of its discovery at the intersection of art, science and nature.
